

Abstract

A device for activating personal protection means (13, 14) activates the personal protection means (13, 14) as a function
5 of a delay between a first signal from an impact sensor system (11) situated in the vehicle front and a second signal from a centrally located acceleration sensor system, the first and second signals each identifying an impact.

10 (Figure 1)